

4.6 Saddles

A saddle includes the girth, surcingle, leathers or webs, and stirrup irons of a design approved by the Stewards or the Club.

Every jockey is responsible for the serviceable condition of the saddle which he uses, provided that in the case of an apprentice jockey the responsibility rests with the apprentice and the trainer to whom he is allocated.

In the case of a saddle used in training, each trainer is responsible for the serviceable condition of such gear.
